Why do we need your express consent to use them?

- The ruling of 1 October 2019 The Grand Chamber or the European Court of Justice

The ruling of October the 1st 2019 The Grand Chamber or the European Court of Justice must be interpreted in the sense of that the consent is not given validly when the storage of the information or the access to the information already stored in the terminal equipment of the user in website Internet, through cookies is authorized through a checkbox ticked by default which the user must remove the mark in case of avoiding its use. In this sense the authorization must be based in an explicit acceptance or an equal rejection from the user and another of more information about the cookies exposed.

This interpretation cannot change if the stored information or consulted in the user's terminal of a place of Internet consists or not of personal data.

The Grand Chamber or the European Court of Justice also disposes in this ruling that the information that the services provider must give to the user a website in Internet, must indicate the time during the cookies will remain active and the possibility of that third parts could access to the information in these stored. This requirement sets the modified version by the Directive 2009/136 that changes the article 5, part 3 of the Directive 2002/58 EU and by the Guide of the APEPD of July 2020.
